Republicans Renominate Hoover This Afternoon After Noisy Procession

G. O. P. Divided On Wet Plank As Reported By Committee; Administration Supports Resubmission; Bingham To Lead Drive On Convention Floor For Repeal.

Stadium, Chicago, June 16 (AP).—Herbert Clarke Hoover, president of the United States, was renominated by the republican delegates for the highest office in the land in a noisy session shortly after two o'clock this afternoon. The renomination came on the first ballot.

Chicago, June 16 (AP)—The republican party in a noisy fashion gave a new pledge of support today to President Hoover.

Reaching at last the one item of its whole program on which there was substantial unanimity, renomination of the president, the convention marched in a long and brilliant parade in his honor, with the standards of the states crowding one another thickly for places in line.

California led off, its delegation jumping to its feet and shouting when Joseph L. Scott, Los Angeles, making the Hoover nomination speech, concluded with a tribute to the leadership of the California man who sits in the White House.

Governors Head Parade
At the head of the marching delegates Governor James Rolph, of California and Governor William T. Gardner, of Maine, whose seats were close together in the front row of the delegate section, joined in carrying at the head of the parade a thirty-foot banner reading:

"From Maine to California, press on with Hoover."

A shouting, dancing holiday parade it was. All the familiar apparatus of convention demonstration had been provided. A band mingled with the marchers, winding in and out among the delegates. Tin horns and whistles added their discord to the riot of noise.

High above, five thousand toy balloons, every color of the rainbow, were released to float across the great hall, their tints enlivened by the daylight glare from the great spotlights above the speakers' stand. A delegate held high the first picture of the president to be displayed in the convention.

Curtis Gains
The renomination over with, the delegates had only to select a Hoover running mate before going home. It looked more and more like a renomination for Vice President Curtis as the vote approached. Chairman Snell cut a corner by not ordering the call of the roll for nomination for president. He merely announced that the time for receiving nominations had arrived and recognized Joseph L. Scott, of Los Angeles.

The convention gave Scott a hand as he read his manuscript from the speaker's stand. He was applauded time after time.

The administration's prohibition plank in the republican platform, adopted by the committee Wednesday night, is as follows:

"Members of the republican party hold different opinions with respect to it and no public official or member of the party should be pledged or forced to choose between his party affiliations and his honest convictions upon this question.

"We do not favor a submission limited to the issue of retention or repeal. For the American nation never in its history has gone backward, and in this case the progress which has been thus far made must be preserved, while the evils must be eliminated.

"We, therefore believe that the people should have an opportunity to pass upon a proposed amendment the provision of which, while retaining in the federal government power to preserve the gains already made in dealing with the evils inherent in the liquor traffic, shall allow states to deal with the problem as their citizens may determine, but subject always to the power of the federal government to protect those states where prohibition may exist and safeguard our citizens everywhere from the return of the saloon and attendant abuses.

"Such an amendment should be promptly submitted to the states by congress, to be acted upon by state conventions called for that sole purpose in accordance with the provisions of article V of the constitution, and adequately safeguarded so as to be truly representative."

Colonel Edgar E. Davis To Retire From Service At Midnight, July 31st

Colonel Edgar E. Davis, superintendent of the Gettysburg National park, will retire from active service on July 31. This announcement was confirmed this morning by Colonel A. K. Burkette, commandant of the Third Corps area, Baltimore, under whose jurisdiction the local park is operated.

Colonel Davis came to Gettysburg June 27, 1927, from Washington, where he was assistant executive officer in the cemetery division of the war department. He succeeded the late Colonel Cope.

The local battlefield superintendent entered the service in 1900 when he was sent to the Philippine Islands. He enlisted at Villisca, Iowa.

During the world war Colonel Davis served as assistant to the quartermaster general at Boston and later was sent to France with the quartermaster corps. He sailed for France in September, 1917, and returned in November, 1919.

His first assignment was at Chaumont, General Pershing's headquarters, and he was "rendint officer," leasing and renting property for the army. Later he was sent to Gievres and then to Tours where he was in the graves registration service. At the conclusion of the war, Colonel Davis transferred to civilian service and was assigned to the war department.

Colonel Davis retires from the superintendency of the local park at midnight, July 31. He expects to remain in Gettysburg for a while and may decide to continue his residence here. He is also considering returning to his native state, Iowa.

His successor has not been announced.

Former Gettysburg Woman Sends Description of Big Republican Convention Hall

An interesting description of the Chicago stadium, scene of the republican national convention and where the democrats will assemble the latter part of this month, is given by Mrs. S. L. Rice, of 4941 Washington boulevard, Chicago, formerly of Gettysburg. Mrs. Rice is subscriber to The Times and is well known in Adams county. Her description of the stadium's interior follows:

"Suspended from the high ceiling are 2,100 American flags, hung in perfect symmetry. Four miles of red, white and blue bunting circle the walls. A large portrait of George Washington, surmounted by an eagle, faces the speakers' stand. The coats of arms of each state and territory are hung on the walls. Two electric clocks, five feet high and four feet wide, are at the ends of the long hall.

Air To Be Cleaned

"Four 60 horsepower fans, each equipped with an air washer, force 125,000 cubic feet of air into the building each minute as exhaust fans withdraw stale air. Sixty-five water coolers serve the thirty."

The Illinois Bell telephone company has installed 425 extra telephones in the building and in conjunction with the American telephone and telegraph company, fifteen teletype machines. The post-office department has established a branch for the delivery and receipt of mail. The telegraph companies have provided for the sending of 450,600 words an hour. There are thirty-eight washrooms, each with a porter or maid in attendance.

3,000 Can Eat at Once

"At the twelve concession stands 3,000 persons eat at one time, in addition to those seated in the grill and cafeteria. Five hospital rooms, with four beds in each, are located in the building, one with complete operating equipment. Fifty booths with 110 tables have been built for newspapermen and six dark rooms are available to photographers."

"A district police station in charge of a captain is located in the stadium. Five hundred policemen, fifty in plain clothes, are detailed inside the structure in four zones covering the main floor, mezzanine, first and second balconies. Each zone is commanded by a lieutenant."

IRVIN KELLY, COAL DEALER, DIES AT NOON

Ruptured Appendix, Followed By Gangrene, Causes Death Today.

SURVIVED BY WIFE, DAUGHTER

Irvin David Kelly, 64, of West street, member of the firm of Kelly and Oyler, Buford avenue coal dealers, died at the Warner hospital at 12:10 o'clock this afternoon following an operation for appendicitis, Monday morning.

Mr. Kelly, who became ill on Sunday, was removed to the hospital, Monday afternoon, and submitted to an immediate operation. The operation disclosed that the appendix was ruptured and that gangrene had set in. Little hope for his recovery was held by hospital authorities after the operation.

An oxygen tent was resorted to on Wednesday in an effort to keep the feeble spark of life from going out. Mr. Kelly was conscious almost to the end when he lapsed into unconsciousness and slept away.

Born near Heidlersburg, a son of the late Joseph E. and Annie Kelly, Mr. Kelly moved to Gettysburg when he and J. Edward Oyler, Chambersburg street, bought out the coal business of the late Daniel Cashman thirty-eight years ago.

Mr. Kelly and Mr. Oyler built up the business which Mr. Cashman operated on a small scale. For a number of years, the firm also conducted a milk receiving station in connection with their coal business.

Wilson College Students Given Smoking Permit

Wilson college, Chambersburg, students hereafter will enjoy the privilege of smoking it was announced today by President E. D. Warfield.

Abolishment of a regulation prohibiting smoking on the part of the students was revealed in this statement:

"A number of changes are taking place in the college, and considerable extension of liberty to the students has been granted. There is a growing realization that parents are recognizing that college students are no longer merely school girls and that they must be increasingly trusted for their own standard of conduct.

"In recognition of this, on the recommendation of the faculty and the concurrence of the board of trustees, the article in the student government rules which has provided that students at Wilson college while members of the college shall not smoke has been rescinded from the rules."

Justice Refuses Bail For Means

Washington, June 16 (AP).—Justice James M. Proctor, in the District of Columbia supreme court, today refused to free Gaston B. Means on bail, pending an appeal of conviction on charges of stealing $104,000 from Mrs. Edward B. McLean, in an alleged attempt to ransom the Lindbergh baby.

In denying a motion for bail, Justice Proctor said he believed Means still has $100,000 and indicated he felt the former investigator might flee if released from jail where he was taken yesterday when given a 15-year sentence.

Dr. and Mrs. Edward Shaulis and Mr. and Mrs. F. Shaulis, of Indiana, Pa., were guests today of the Rev. and Mrs. Dwight F. Putnam, Springs avenue.

NERVOUSNESS, INDIGESTION GONE YORK CO. MATRON THANKS NATEX

Case Should Interest Everyone Suffering With Stomach And Liver Trouble Or Constipation.

Every sufferer from stomach trouble and nervousness should visit Bender's Cut Rate Store (formerly Murphy's) and learn about the new triple-strength Nutex. Nutex contains about three times as much real medicine as is found in any ordinary tonic. Every dose brings you almost nine grains of tonics for your stomach as well as six grains of other beneficial ingredients for your whole system. That is why Nutex so quickly and positively relieves the many ailments which are found when the stomach, liver and bowels are weakened and deranged.

Mrs. Albert Jacobs popular young matron, of Spring Grove who lives on Route No. 2, is one of the many people of this section who have taken Nutex with wonderful results. She says:

"For some time my nerves had been in a bad condition but recently they became so wretched that I was unable to leave the house. The least bit of excitement would upset me and I could be in misery for a long time afterwards. This condition was probably responsible for my stomach getting out of order. I really had no desire for food and what little I ate brought on terrible attacks of indigestion and gastritis. In addition to this, I suffered with frequent spells of biliousness and my bowels were badly constipated. I read in the paper how Nutex had helped so many other people so I thought it might help me. Almost from the very first dose I noticed an improvement in my condition, and now that I have finished the third bottle I feel like a new person. My nerves are under control and no longer bother me in the least and my appetite is so much better that I am eating three big meals every day and best of all, Nutex put an end to my stomach trouble. It stimulated my liver and bowels and my health in general is so much better that I say to others, try Nutex."

Nutex is being sold and recommended by all leading druggists everywhere and especially by Bender's Cut Rate Store (formerly Murphy's), 16 Baltimore St. Accept no substitute, there is no other medicine like Nutex. Nutex is the only triple-strength prescription perfected by a college professor from nature's roots and herbs.

Sifting Olympic Hopes

By Alan Gould
(Associated Press Sports Editor)
New York (AP)—Such are the peculiar turns of athletic fortune that if, as seems likely, the United States scores better than ever on the Olympic track this year, our boys may be less fortunate than usual in the field events.

Heretofore we have been able to count on clinching the team championship by rolling up impressive point totals in the fine arts of jumping, vaulting and weight-heaving. It seems, therefore, that while America has been concentrating on a drive to regain foot-racing prestige, foreign countries have been spreading a good share of their time improving themselves in recognized American specialties.

Good—Also Better

Thus, although we might ask for no better shotputters than Herman Brix and Leo Sexton, the fact is that Hirschfeld of Germany, Franz Douda of Czechoslovakia or Marry Hart of South Africa may carry through to win.

Similarly, we have a fine group of young broad-jumpers, led by Dick Barber of Southern California, but Japan and Haiti have each developed 26-foot performers. One of them, Cator of Haiti, holds the recognized world record of 26 feet, 1/2 inch, and Nambu of Japan has done two inches better.

The Irish, represented by Dr. O'Callaghan, and the Swedes look to be the best in the hammer throw. The Finns and Swedes look class even our much improved national champions at javelin tossing.

The Japanese have made an issue of the hop, step and jump, following Mikio Oda's triumph at Amsterdam, and figure to sweep this trick event. In the decathlon, nothing short of an earthquake can stop either Akilles Jarvinen or Paavo Yrjola, the pair of Finnish aces.

Three Events Clinched

Thus, there are left only three field events in which the United States may be reasonably sure of winning and, likely sweeping. These are the pole vault, high jump and discus throw.

Paul Jessup, Bob Jones and perhaps John Anderson, the former Cornell star making a come-back, should attend to the discus-whirling chores.

There are several foreign pole vault threats but none classes with Bill Graber of Southern California, Lee Barnes, 1924 Olympic champion, Fred Sturdy, the ex-Yale star, or several other youngsters who have achieved or flirted with 14 feet. Similarly, in the high jump, we have probably the world's best half-dozen, led by New York's George Spitz.

The best American prospect in the hammer throw is Frank Connor, last year's intercollegiate champion and a Yale product. Ineligibility deprived the United States of its leading decathlon performer.

Of Embezzlement

Philadelphia, June 16 (AP).—Warrants charging Michael J. Ryan, a former city solicitor of Philadelphia, with "fraudulently converting, embezzling and misappropriating upwards of $50,000" from the Girard Avenue Title and Trust company were issued today.

Ryan, who also is a former public service commissioner, who has been active in politics and civic affairs, was a former president of the bank. His son, George M. Ryan, assistant treasurer of the closed institution, was sentenced to 10 to 20 years in the county prison last December after pleading guilty with three others to an embezzlement of $441,000 from the bank.

Coach Rebukes

Lady Columnist

Madison, Wis. (AP).—Walter E. Meanwell, famous basketball coach at the University of Wisconsin, disclosed talent as a scrivener recently with this published reply to a woman newspaper columnist who commented upon his headgear: "That hat, my dear young lady, was distinctly appropriate to my need for protection and to my present feelings and mood. It was warm, soft, clinging and so tempered the winds to my shorn head. "Much has blown icily and depressingly my way of late. For heaven's sake don't find even my hat ineligible. It is about all that is left of the original basketball squad and even if the hat was drab, battered and generally unesthetic, it still was entirely appropriate to my mood and feelings."

VIOLET SHARPE

LAID TO REST

Morrow Maid, who Committed Suicide Is Buried; British Consul Present.

Englewood, N. J., June 16 (AP).—Violet Sharpe, English servant girl in the home of Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow, was buried Wednesday after a brief service attended by fellow-members of the Morrow household and by Gerald Shepherd, the acting British consul general at New York, who has been instructed to make a report on the girl's suicide six days ago.

The coffin was borne to a grave in Brookside cemetery, where rests the body of Senator Dwight W. Morrow, grandfather of the murdered Lindbergh baby.

No member of the Morrow or Lindbergh family attended the funeral, although they were represented by Arthur Springer, the late senator's private secretary, and Mrs. Josephine D. Graham, Mrs. Morrow's private secretary.

Aims "Conservative Opinion" Shepherd, immediately after the funeral, went to the Morrow estate to confer with Springer, from whom he obtained facts to aid him in drafting his report.

"My report," Shepherd said, "will be a conservative opinion of things as they are." He expects to complete it in less than a week and have it delivered to the foreign office in London within a fortnight.

While Shepherd conferred with Springer, who was instructed by Mrs. Morrow before she sailed early Wednesday for Europe to give Shepherd his "whole-hearted cooperation," the British parliament was informed by a representative of the foreign office that the British government had no information on which it could make representations to the United States government in the death of the girl.

Although Shepherd declined to express an opinion on published reports that "third-degree" methods were used in questioning the girl, Springer volunteered the information that there was no "harshness" about the manner of the questioning he witnessed.

Auto Crash Reports

Closed To Public

Pennsylvania motor vehicle operators who may be involved in accidents need not fear that what they state in their accident reports will be used against them, the bureau of highway patrol and safety today pointed out. The state vehicle code not only requires operators to report accidents to the department of revenue but also protects them against prosecution based on their report.

The law on the subject is as follows: "Such report shall be without prejudice, shall be for the information of the department, and shall not be open to public inspection.

"The fact that such reports have been made shall be admissible in evidence solely to prove a compliance with this act, but no report, or any part thereof, or statement contained therein, shall be admissible as evidence for any purpose in any trial, civil or criminal, arising out of such accidents."

Accident reports are solely for the information of the department, and often aid in preventing accidents of a similar nature.

Posters To Reveal

Necessary Tests

The department of revenue has prepared a poster to be displayed at all official motor vehicle inspection stations which is intended to remove any occasion for disputes between car owners and station proprietors during the compulsory inspection period that begins July 1 and ends September 30.

The poster lists in detail what parts of the vehicle the stations must inspect and what the stations must do in making the inspection. It is intended for the protection of both car owner and inspection station. By referring to the posted requirements, the car owner will be able to check against "over inspection" and the station owner will be in the position of showing the car owner he is complying with the law.

The poster also calls attention to the fact that vehicles must be inspected between July 1 and September 30 and that owners must at all times maintain the safety factors on their vehicles in conformity with the vehicle code. Owners are asked to assure themselves of the safe condition of their vehicle, thereby helping to reduce accidents.

Dog Licenses Show

Decrease In Year

A total of 421,939 dog licenses have been issued, 10,839 uncontrolled dogs killed, 1,149 dog owners prosecuted and 604 claims amounting to $13,534.11 received this year to date, according to the latest report from the bureau of animal industry, Pennsylvania department of agriculture.

Comparing this report with the report on the corresponding date a year ago, it is found that this year 14,876 fewer dogs have been licensed, 1,167 more dogs have been killed, 1,463 fewer dog owners have been prosecuted, and $4,867 less in damage claims has been received.

Solicits Motorist

To Protect Game

Careless motorists kill too many valuable game birds and animals, Governor Pinchot said today. The game commission, he said, is doing everything possible to reduce such carelessness. Recently it distributed 10,000 posters entitled "Save Our Game." The poster shows a cottontail in the path of an oncoming automobile.

At least two rabbits are killed daily for every 100 miles of good highways. Pennsylvania's improved roads total 13,500 miles. On that basis 270 rabbits are killed each day, or over 100,000 per year. Thousands are killed on rural and other unimproved roads.

The governor said most of the rabbits are killed at night. If drivers will dim their lights or even slow up when they see one in the road, the animals will jump to safety. Lights blind them. The governor also pointed out that in the southeastern part of the state, where ringneck pheasants are abundant, several thousand are killed each year. Motorists cannot be blamed, however. The birds fly against the car. Reports of the game commission show that during the past few years from 800 to 1,000 mounting permits have been issued annually to person whose automobiles kill pheasants.

Use Chemicals In

Potato Wart War

Treating soil with chemicals to control potato wart organisms is now being tested by the bureau of plant industry, Pennsylvania department of agriculture, in the experimental garden at Drifton, Luzerne county.

This represents an effort to discover a practical method of eradicating potato wart, a destructive disease which has been found in small areas in eleven counties in Pennsylvania, and is responsible for a quarantine now enforced in the infected area.

Various chemicals and different methods of application are being tried.

HOOVER BACKS

"WET" PLANK

Oppose Outright Repeal But Favors Resubmission To Vote Of People.

Washington, June 16.—The prohibition plank placed before the Chicago convention Wednesday night, calling for an immediate submission to the nation of a new amendment to replace the eighteenth amendment, carries the full approval of President Hoover.

Although the white house maintained a rigid silence on the proposed plan, it was learned on high authority that its principles coincide with the views of Mr. Hoover.

Lists Over Radio The chief executive himself listened intently by radio and telephone during the evening to the proposed plank's reception by the Chicago delegates.

Obviously, however, it was his intention to remain entirely aloof from the Chicago prohibition fight, with the only chance of his entering the arena being an uncontrollable stampede at the convention. There was no certainty that he would enter even then.

No White House Comment When asked specifically Wednesday night whether President Hoover would have anything to say upon the action taken at Chicago, Theodore Joslin, the only member of the regular white house secretariat remaining in the capital, replied: "You can say there will be no comment from the white house."

In other authoritative quarters, however, it was made entirely plain that the chief executive was pleased at the action of the resolutions committee in reporting out the resubmission plank.

Opposition To Repeal Known He had let it be known that he was opposed to any outright repeal plank being placed in the republican platform and had stated his ideas on resubmission—similar to those adopted by the resolutions committee—to the members of his cabinet before the convention.

HOUSE PASSES

BONUS, 209-176

Plan Provides For Issue Of Currency; Measure Now Goes To Senate.

Congressman Harry L. Haines, of the York-Adams district, voted against the bonus bill.

Washington, June 16 (AP).—The banner of victory was hoisted above the house of representatives Wednesday by the army of 20,000 war veterans bivouacked at the capitol to demand immediate payment of their bonus certificates.

By a 209 to 176 vote, the house agreed to the issuance of $2,400,000,000 in new currency to meet the demands of the veterans who have converged on Washington from all sections of the nation.

Jubilant over their temporary victory, the former service men faced a fierce struggle in the senate where leaders predicted they had enough votes to kill the legislation. President Hoover has promised a veto if it reaches the white house.

Goes to Senate Committee

The measure was received by the senate late in the day and Senator Thomas, democrat, Oklahoma, asked unanimous consent for it to be taken up at once. Objection was raised, however, by Senator Smoot, republican, Utah, and it was referred to the finance committee.

Smoot, chairman of the committee, promised prompt action, saying his group would be called together early today to consider the bill.

He told the senate it was not his intention to keep it in committee but to report it out today so the senate may vote before adjournment.

While veterans looked down from packed galleries, the house amended the bill by Representative Patman, democrat, Texas, for full payment to provide for an issue of government bonds to be used for retiring the currency if the dollar became too cheap.

Soldiers' Bonus

Washington, June 16 (AP).—The $2,400,000,000 cash bonus bill was voted adversely today by the senate finance committee.

The first senators to emerge from the meeting said the vote was 14 to 2 against the bonus.

The bill will be reported immediately to the senate and an attempt made to get a vote there as soon as possible.

Leaders already were confident of a sufficient majority to kill the bill but they were reassured by the size of the opposition committee vote.

Reports Recovery

Of Stolen Autos

The title section of the department of revenue reports recovery in May of fifty-three motor vehicles abandoned by thieves. Three stolen motor vehicles were found in the possession of the thieves.

The number of all abandoned motor vehicles recovered was seventy-eight more than in May last year. The total estimated value of the vehicles was $31,410. Twelve were out-of-state vehicles found in Pennsylvania and two were Pennsylvania cars found in other states. A total of 429 vehicles have been recovered since the first of the year. These had an estimated value of $200,007.

The vehicles recovered were found either by the state highway patrol, local police, garage owners or other agencies.

Gambler's Throw

by Eustace L. Adams

SYNOPSIS: Kidnapped by Lumpy Ashwood's gang, Nancy Wentworth, musical comedienne, actress, singer, dancer, and four millionaires are politely entertained by Ashwood while he collects in installments of ransom. On the remote island three men plan a rescue, having traced the kidnapers by plane, and Jerry Calhoun determines to invade Ashwood's island.

Chapter 16 SUSPICIOUS HOSPITALITY

Somehow, to Nancy's relieved amazement, another breathless day had dragged its laggard hours without bloodshed.

Mallory, bandaged and looking very sick, had remained indoors, glowering over one highball after another. Hamilton had been engrossed, as usual, in his interminable Canfield. Martin and Williams, vague, inoffensive figures, drifted like restless wraiths in and out of the rooms. Nancy's scalp tightened and prickled whenever she looked into their eyes, such depths of misery and madness were reflected there. Lucci and Ashwood had discussed business intermittently without, apparently, reaching an entente cordiale.

A faint whisper of cool wind rattled the door palm leaves as the livid sun dived unceremoniously beneath the hard line of the horizon. Ashwood, lounging indolently a dozen feet away, was watching the kaleidoscopic play of colors with an appreciative eye. Suddenly, however, he sat bolt upright, gazing fixedly across the mile-wide stretch of iridescent water toward the sand bordering the nearest island to the east. He rose, shrilled his peculiar whistle and pointed across to where etched in black against the tinted background of sand, stood a solitary figure, waving a white handkerchief.

Instantly, it seemed, a swift motorboat, manned by a crew of three, dashed out of the camouflaged dock and headed across the channel.

Lucci, Mallory, Wilson and Martin emerged from the house to stand lined up at the porch rail, watching the speeding boat in expectant silence, speculating inwardly upon the meaning of the stranger in the lives of those on the kidnappers' island. The mahogany boat coasted up to the opposite shore, the three men leaped out on the beach and after a brief parley with the newcomer, took him aboard and returned with him to the boathouse.

As the lone man, surrounded by the three guards, walked toward the house Nancy became aware of an intuitive certainty this was not a casual wayfarer, but a messenger from those of the outside world who were interested in her rescue. He had been in the water, that much was evident, for his clothes clung wetly to his muscular figure.

Of medium height, the set of his shoulders and the narrowness of his hips gave his slight figure a litheness, a grace of modeling, which would have gladdened the eye of an artist. He was not handsome, for his mouth was too large and his jaw too prominent. But his tanned face—a little impudent, perhaps—had a carefree, reckless something in it which gave him a distinction not to be gained by mere good looks.

The girl's heart gave a sudden bound. She knew she had seen that careless grin before. The twinkling gray eyes, as they swept over the row of people lining the rail, hesitated briefly as they met her gaze, then passed on. She knew, now. The boy who had asked for a lift on the Merrick road. Her flash of intuition had, then, been right; he was in the vanguard of the rescuing party. It could hardly be that he had failed to recognize her. So she gazed straight at him with an unmoved expression, betraying not the slightest sign that she had ever seen him before.

Jerry gazed at him with astonishment. Surely this harmless-looking cripple could not be leader of a band of kidnapping desperadoes! It would be that, battered, saturnine person on his right or the powerfully-built, bandaged fellow on the other side of the girl. Yet as soon as the old-young man had spoken the guards fell back to a discreet distance, where they remained, watchful, awaiting further instructions.

"Sorry to have butted in like this," replied the flyer, dolefully. "My boat sank and left me all wet, so to speak."

"Indeed?" Ashwood's voice was mildly satirical. "A boat, eh? I had expected to hear you had come here in search of a telephone to summon a tire repair crew."

"I'm not sure that I like your tone," observed Jerry, deliberately. "But since I'm already indebted to you, I'll explain. I was paddling my boat along the inner passage behind the chain of islands over there when she sprung a leak. She was loaded pretty heavily and sank like a stone. I managed to swim ashore, but couldn't save a thing except the clothes I was in."

"How unfortunate," murmured the cripple sympathetically. "I am only too glad, however, to offer you our simple hospitality until this somewhat odd but altogether delightful little house-party breaks up." He glanced at the others with a sar-domic gleam of amusement. He clasped his hands, after the Eastern custom, and a servant appeared. "This is a new guest, Alfred," explained Ashwood, easily. "Find him a room and some dry clothes. By the way, it might be well if we learned your name. We are, as you will presently observe, very informal in our dealings with one another, but we do not go about calling each other 'Hey' and 'You.'"

"Permit me, then, to introduce myself as Walter Peabody, of New York," bowed Jerry.

"A delightful name, I'm sure," smiled Ashwood affably. "May I introduce you to our guests? You will know them, I trust, quite well before you depart. This beautiful young lady you may recognize: Miss Nancy Wentworth."

Jerry looked straight into Nancy's brown eyes and bowed impersonally. Ashwood's keen glance did not miss a flicker of his expression, or of hers.

"This somewhat careworn gentleman with small patches of olive skin beneath the white bandages, Mr.—er—Peabody, is one of Chicago's civic leaders, a monument to the industry which made him both famous and prosperous, who rejoices in the euphonious name of One-shot Lucci."

Jerry permitted himself a start of surprise and an amused glance at the frowning One-shot. Then he turned abruptly to Ashwood, who appeared to be thoroughly enjoying himself.

(Copyright, Dial Press)

Does Ashwood suspect that Jerry and Nancy have met before? The tension tightens, in the next installment.

Hollywood Sights & Sounds

By Robbin Coons

Hollywood—Preview-hunters of filmland are becoming almost as selective in their "shopping" for new films as movie patrons over the country have demonstrated they can be.

Preview-chasing is one of the minor nocturnal sports of a town that finds play in its work and will dress up in its best raiment on opening nights to see a finished product that will remind it of its long hours on sets, in offices and cutting rooms.

There isn't any dressing up for previews, and there isn't any way of knowing beforehand that the "shopping" will be rewarded with anything worthwhile. But that's the element of chance that lends zest to the chase.

One Way To Tell

One way of telling in advance, or at least guessing, what the preview attraction will be on any certain night, is to stand in the lobby a while before the show begins and see who comes. Of course that means that if you do find out and don't care for the picture your preview night is wasted, but at least you're spared seeing something you're pretty sure is dull.

But any movie fan who reads his movie news, knows who is making what picture and who is in the cast, can make a fair guess before he goes into the theater.

The star will arrive, in company with studio executives, perhaps; a featured player will hurry in, or a leading man; the director will be there. There may be other stars, other leading men, other directors, but a little observation of their comparative nervousness will reveal which are most vitally interested in the new film.

Previews Important

Much depends on a preview, and the reaction of the "typical audience." For autograph-hunters and preview-chasers the preview may be a picnic, but for those who made the picture it's a court of public opinion and its verdict is important.

A form of "previewing" prior to production is that used by Eddie Cantor for "The Kid From Spain" and Al Jolson for his new one. The scheme is to try out songs and business in a personal appearance in San Francisco.

NEW CITIZENS GUESTS OF LIONS

York—The newly naturalized citizens of York county were guests of the York Lions' club at the weekly dinner meeting held Tuesday night in the gymnasium of the Y. W. C. A., 120 East Market street. Ten of the new citizens were in attendance. The address of the evening was made by E. A. Hirschman, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks pink, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of fluid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath in foul, skin often breaks out in blotches. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get those two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile now freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resist a substitute. 25c at all stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.

Sifting Olympic Hopes

By Alan Gould

(Associated Press Sports Editor)
New York (AP)—For the first time in 20 years of international athletic rivalry the United States on its most productive track and field soil, has a chance to sweep the Olympic foot races up to and including the 1500-meter run.

The factors making this possible include not only the California climate and numerical superiority of the native forces over sharply curtailed foreign entries, but, mainly, the phenomenal development of such American stars as Ben Eastman and Gene Venzke at the so-called middle distances.

Moreover, the disbarment of France's world-record breaker, Jules Ladoumègue, has removed one of the chief threats to these American youngsters.

With or without Nurni as a rival, there is little if any prospect that the United States will develop a winner in the long distance races, from the 3000-meter steeplechase to the classic marathon.

The native and adopted sons, however, will have no alibi if they fail to come through in the more spectacular gallops.

The prodigality of our youthful speed kings seems little short of amazing. If Frank Wykoff and George Simpson, two prime favorites, do not round into their best form, for example, we have two smashing newcomers to rely on in Bob Kiesel, the California sophomore, and Ralph Metcalfe, the Marquette negro.

Since we opened this discussion with a size-up of the sprint outlook, Metcalfe has raced the 220 in world record time, 20.4 seconds and must be considered now as a potential winner of the Olympic 200-meter dash, along with Eddie Tolan, another dusky flier.

Percy Williams, the Canadian ace, will likely give anyone a real tussle before he yields the double crown he won at the last Olympics, but we would not hesitate to pick either Emmett Toppino or Bob Kiesel, in the absence or inability of Wykoff, to "take" Williams in the 100 meters.

Only some qualifying mishap or a severe slump, it appears, can menace the chances of Ben Eastman scoring a double triumph at 300 to 800 meters.

Gene Venzke is the best American bet in the 1500, though a rather heavy burden of proof will rest upon him.

His logical running mates are

"Pen" Hallowell of Harvard and either Frank Nordell of New York University or Henry Brooksmith of Indiana. His foreign foes appear, chiefly, Huri Larva and Lauri Lehtinen of Finland, R. H. Thomas of England.

Beyond the 1500, all that can be said for American chances is that Joe McCluskey will be a real contender for 3000-meter steeplechase honors, and that Leo Lermond may place in the 5000 meters.

The flying Finns, including Lehtinen, Virtanen, Iso-Hollo and Loukola, likely will have thuns all their own way at 5000 and 10,000 meters.

The Marathon is always a big gamble, but such sturdy foreigners as Paul de Bruyn of Germany, Juan Carlos Zabala and Jose Filbas of Argentina, besides the Finns and Japanese with unpronounceable names, likely will prove too much for the American entries, so far including Jimmy Henigan of Boston and Hans Oldag of Buffalo. Oldag may be our best bet.

American high hurdlers look invincible now, led by such world-record breakers as Percy Beard and Jack Keller. The foreign contingent will be harder to beat over the 400-meter low hurdles, with Lord "Davey" Burghley of England defending the championship.

Gambler's Throw

by Eustace L. Adams

SYNOPSIS: Kidnapped by Limpy Ashwood's gang, Nancy Wentworth, musical comedy actress, a gangster, Lucel, and four millionaires are poitely entertained by Ashwood while he collects installments of ransom. On a neighboring island three men plan a rescue, having traced the kidnapers by plane, and Jerry Calhoun determines to invade Ashwood's island.

Chapter 18

SUSPICIOUS HOSPITALITY

Somewhat, to Nancy's relieved amazement, another breathless day had dragged its laggard hours without bloodshed.

Mallory, bandaged and looking very sick, had remained indoors, glowering over one highball after another. Hamilton had been engrossed, as usual, in his interminable Canfield. Martin and Williams, vague, inoffensive figures, drifted like restless wraiths in and out of the rooms. Nancy's scalp tightened and pricked whenever she looked into their eyes, such depths of misery and madness were reflected there. Lucel and Ashwood had discussed business intermittently without, apparently, reaching an entente cordiale.

A faint whisper of cool wind rattled the dry palm leaves as the livid sun dived unceremoniously beneath the hard line of the horizon.

Ashwood, lounging indolently a dozen feet away, was watching the kaleidoscopic play of colors with an appreciative eye. Suddenly, however, he sat bolt upright, gazing fixedly across the mile-wide stretch of iridescent water toward the sand bordering the nearest island to the east. He rose, shrilled his peculiar whistle and pointed across to where etched in black against the tinted background of sand, stood a solitary figure, waving a white handkerchief.

Instantly, it seemed, a swift motorboat, manned by a crew of three, dashed out of the camouflaged dock and headed across the channel. Lucel, Mallory, Wilson and Martin emerged from the house to stand lined up at the porch rail, watching the speeding boat in expectant silence, speculating inwardly upon the meaning of the stranger in the lives of those on the kidnapers' island. The mahogany boat coasted up to the opposite shore, the three men leaped out on the beach and after a brief parley with the newcomer, took him aboard and returned with him to the boathouse.

As the lone man surrounded by the three guards, walked toward the house Nancy became aware of an intuitive certainty this was not a casual wayfarer, but a messenger from those of the outside world who were interested in her rescue. He had been in the water, that much was evident, for his clothes clung wetly to his muscular figure.

Of medium height, the set of his shoulders and the narrowness of his hips gave his slight figure a litheness, a grace of modeling, which would have gladdened the eye of an artist. He was not handsome, for his mouth was too large and his jaw too prominent. But his tanned face—a little impudent, perhaps—had a carefree, reckless something in it which gave him a distinction not to be gained by mere good looks.

The girl's heart gave a sudden bound. She knew she had seen that careless grin before. The twinkling gray eyes, as they swept over the row of people lining the rail, hesitated briefly as they met her gaze, then passed on. She knew, now. The boy who had asked for a lift on the Merrick road. Her flash of intuition had, then, been right; he was in the vanguard of the rescuing party. It could hardly be that he had failed to recognize her. So she gazed straight at him with an unmoved expression, betraying not the slightest sign that she had ever seen him before.

Jerry gazed at him with astonishment. Surely this harmless-looking cripple could not be leader of a band of kidnapping desperadoes! It would be that battered, saturnine person on his right or the powerfully-built, bandaged fellow on the other side of the girl. Yet as soon as the old-young man had spoken the guards fell back to a discreet distance, where they remained, watchful, awaiting further instructions.

"Sorry to have butted in like this," replied the flyer, dolefully. "My boat sank and left me all wet, so to speak."

"Indeed?" Ashwood's voice was mildly satirical. "A boat, eh? I had expected to hear you had come here in search of a telephone to summon a tire repair crew."

"I'm not sure that I like your tone," observed Jerry, deliberately. "But since I'm already indebted to you, I'll explain. I was paddling my boat along the inner passage behind the chain of islands over there when she sprung a leak. She was loaded pretty heavily and sank like a stone. I managed to swim ashore, but couldn't save a thing except the clothes I was in."

"How unfortunate," murmured the cripple sympathetically. "I am only too glad, however, to offer you our simple hospitality until this somewhat odd but altogether delightful little house-party breaks up." He glanced at the others with a sardonic gleam of amusement. He clapped his hands, after the Eastern custom, and a servant appeared. "This is a new guest, Alfred," explained Ashwood, easily. "Find him a room and some dry clothes. By the way, it might be well if we learned your name. We are, as you will presently observe, very informal in our dealings with one another, but we do not go about calling each other 'Hey' and 'You.'"

"Permit me, then, to introduce myself as Walter Peabody, of New York," bowed Jerry.

"A delightful name, I'm sure," smiled Ashwood affably. "May I introduce you to our guests? You will know them, I trust, quite well before you depart. This beautiful young lady you may recognize: Miss Nancy Wentworth."

Jerry looked straight into Nancy's brown eyes and bowed impersonally. Ashwood's keen glance did not miss a flicker of his expression, or of hers.

"This somewhat careworn gentleman with small patches of olive skin beneath the white bandages, Mr.—er—Peabody, is one of Chicago's civic leaders, a monument to the industry which made him both famous and prosperous, who rejoices in the euphonious name of One-shot Lucel."

Jerry permitted himself a start of surprise and an amused glance at the frowning One-shot. Then he turned abruptly to Ashwood, who appeared to be thoroughly enjoying himself.

(Copyright, Dial Press)

Does Ashwood suspect that Jerry and Nancy have met before? The tension tightens, in the next installment.

Hollywood Sights & Sounds

By Robbin Coons

Hollywood—Preview-hunters of filmland are becoming almost as selective in their "shopping" for new films as movie patrons over the country have demonstrated they can be.

Preview-chasing is one of the minor nocturnal sports of a town that finds play in its work and will dress up in its best raiment on opening nights to see a finished product that will remind it of its long hours on sets, in offices and cutting rooms.

There isn't any dressing up for previews, and there isn't any way of knowing beforehand that the "shopping" will be rewarded with anything worthwhile. But that's the element of chance that lends zest to the chase.

One Way To Tell

One way of telling in advance, or at least guessing, what the preview attraction will be on any certain night, is to stand in the lobby a while before the show begins and see who comes. Of course that means that if you do find out and don't care for the picture your preview night is wasted, but at least you're spared seeing something you're pretty sure is dull.

But any movie fan who reads his movie news, knows who is making what picture and who is in the cast, can make a fair guess before he goes into the theater.

The star will arrive, in company with studio executives, perhaps; a featured player will hurry in, or a leading man; the director will be there. There may be other stars, other leading men, other directors, but a little observation of their comparative nervousness will reveal which are most vitally interested in the new film.

Previews Important

Much depends on a preview, and the reaction of the "typical audience." For autograph-hunters and preview-chasers the preview may be a picnic, but for those who made the picture it's a court of public opinion and its verdict is important.

VIOLET SHARPE LAID TO REST

Morrow Maid, who Committed Suicide Is Buried; British Consul Present.

Englewood, N. J., June 16 (AP).—

Violet Sharpe, English servant girl in the home of Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow, was buried Wednesday afternoon in a brief service attended by fellow-members of the Morrow household and by Gerald Shepherd, the acting British consul general at New York, who has been instructed to make a report on the girl's suicide six days ago.

The coffin was borne to a grave in Brookside cemetery, where rests the body of Senator Dwight W. Morrow, grandfather of the murdered Lindbergh baby.

No member of the Morrow or Lindbergh family attended the funeral, although they were represented by Arthur Springer, the late senator's private secretary, and Mrs. Josephine D. Graham, Mrs. Morrow's private secretary.

Aims "Conservative Opinion" Shepherd, immediately after the funeral, went to the Morrow estate to confer with Springer, from whom he obtained facts to aid him in drafting his report.

"My report," Shepherd said, "will be a conservative opinion of things as they are." He expects to complete it in less than a week and have it delivered to the foreign office in London within a fortnight.

While Shepherd conferred with Springer, who was instructed by Mrs. Morrow before she sailed early Wednesday for Europe to give Shepherd his "whole-hearted cooperation," the British parliament was informed by a representative of the foreign office that the British government had no information on which it could make representations to the United States government in the death of the girl.

Although Shepherd declined to express an opinion on published reports that "third-degree" methods were used in questioning the girl, Springer volunteered the information that there was no "harshness" about the manner of the questioning he witnessed.

Auto Crash Reports Closed To Public

Pennsylvania motor vehicle operators who may be involved in accidents need not fear that what they state in their accident reports will be used against them, the bureau of highway patrol and safety today pointed out. The state vehicle code not only requires operators to report accidents to the department of revenue but also protects them against prosecution based on their report.

The law on the subject is as follows: "Such report shall be without prejudice, shall be for the information of the department, and shall not be open to public inspection.

"The fact that such reports have been made shall be admissible in evidence solely to prove a compliance with this act, but no report, or any part thereof, or statement contained therein, shall be admissible as evidence for any purpose in any trial, civil or criminal, arising out of such accidents."

Accident reports are solely for the information of the department, and often aid in preventing accidents of a similar nature.

Posters To Reveal Necessary Tests

The department of revenue has prepared a poster to be displayed at all official motor vehicle inspection stations which is intended to remove any occasion for disputes between car owners and station proprietors during the compulsory inspection period that begins July 1 and ends September 30.

The poster lists in detail what parts of the vehicle the stations must inspect and what the stations must do in making the inspection. It is intended for the protection of both car owner and inspection station. By referring to the posted requirements, the car owner will be able to check against "over inspection" and the station owner will be in the position of showing the car owner he is complying with the law.

The poster also calls attention to the fact that vehicles must be inspected between July 1 and September 30 and that owners must at all times maintain the safety factors on their vehicles in conformity with the vehicle code. Owners are asked to assure themselves of the safe condition of their vehicle, thereby helping to reduce accidents.

Dog Licenses Show Decrease In Year

A total of 421,939 dog licenses have been issued, 10,839 uncontrolled dogs killed, 1,149 dog owners prosecuted and 604 claims amounting to $13,534.11 received this year to date, according to the latest report from the bureau of animal industry, Pennsylvania department of agriculture.

Comparing this report with the report on the corresponding date a year ago, it is found that this year 14,876 fewer dogs have been licensed, 1,167 more dogs have been killed, 1,463 fewer dog owners have been prosecuted, and $4,867 less in damage claims has been received.

Solicits Motorist To Protect Game

Careless motorists kill too many valuable game birds and animals, Governor Pinchot said today. The game commission, he said, is doing everything possible to reduce such carelessness. Recently it distributed 10,000 posters entitled "Save Our Game." The poster shows a cottontail in the path of an oncoming automobile.

At least two rabbits are killed daily for every 100 miles of good highways. Pennsylvania's improved roads total 13,500 miles. On that basis 270 rabbits are killed each day, or over 100,000 per year. Thousands are killed on rural and other unimproved roads.

The governor said most of the rabbits are killed at night. If drivers will dim their lights or even slow up when they see one in the road, the animals will jump to safety. Lights blind them.

The governor also pointed out that in the southeastern part of the state, where ringneck pheasants are abundant, several thousand are killed each year. Motorists cannot be blamed, however. The birds fly against the car. Reports of the game commission show that during the past few years from 800 to 1,000 mounting permits have been issued annually to persons whose automobiles kill pheasants.

Use Chemicals In Potato Wart War

Treating soil with chemicals to control potato wart organisms is now being tested by the bureau of plant industry, Pennsylvania department of agriculture, in the experimental garden at Drifton, Luzerne county.

This represents an effort to discover a practical method of eradicating potato wart, a destructive disease which has been found in small areas in eleven counties in Pennsylvania, and is responsible for a quarantine now enforced in the infected area.

Various chemicals and different methods of application are being tried.

HOUSE PASSES BONUS, 209-176

Plan Provides For Issue Of Currency; Measure Now Goes To Senate.

Congressman Harry L. Haines, of the York-Adams district, voted against the bonus bill.

Washington, June 16 (AP).—The banner of victory was hoisted above the house of representatives Wednesday by the army of 20,000 war veterans bivouacked at the capitol to demand immediate payment of their bonus certificates.

By a 209 to 176 vote, the house agreed to the issuance of $2,400,000,000 in new currency to meet the demands of the veterans who have converged on Washington from all sections of the nation.

Jubilant over their temporary victory, the former service men faced a fierce struggle in the senate where leaders predicted they had enough votes to kill the legislation. President Hoover has promised a veto if it reaches the white house.

Goes to Senate Committee

The measure was received by the senate late in the day and Senator Thomas, democrat, Oklahoma, asked unanimous consent for it to be taken up at once. Objection was raised, however, by Senator Smoot, republican, Utah, and it was referred to the finance committee.

Smoot, chairman of the committee, promised prompt action, saying his group would be called together early today to consider the bill.

He told the senate it was not his intention to keep it in committee but to report it out today so the senate may vote before adjournment.

While veterans looked down from packed galleries, the house amended the bill by Representative Patman, democrat, Texas, for full payment to provide for an issue of government bonds to be used for retiring the currency if the dollar became too cheap.

Senate Finance Committee Balks Soldiers' Bonus

Washington, June 16 (AP).—The $2,400,000,000 cash bonus bill was voted adversely today by the senate finance committee.

The first senators to emerge from the meeting said the vote was 14 to 2 against the bonus.

The bill will be reported immediately to the senate and an attempt made to get a vote there as soon as possible.

Leaders already were confident of a sufficient majority to kill the bill but they were reassured by the size of the opposition committee vote.

Reports Recovery Of Stolen Autos

The title section of the department of revenue reports recovery in May of fifty-three motor vehicles abandoned by thieves. Three stolen motor vehicles were found in the possession of the thieves.

The number of all abandoned motor vehicles recovered was seventy-eight more than in May last year. The total estimated value of the vehicles was $31,410. Twelve were out-of-state vehicles found in Pennsylvania and two were Pennsylvania cars found in other states. A total of 429 vehicles have been recovered since the first of the year. These had an estimated value of $200,007.

The vehicles recovered were found either by the state highway patrol, local police, garage owners or other agencies.

Out of the Past

Happenings of Days Gone by as Chronicled in The Star and Sentinel and The Gettysburg Times, the Files Reveal

TWENTY YEARS AGO

Twenty-five years ago, Monday, June 17th, Charles A. Blocher started in business at the stand now occupied by him on Center Square. During these years Mr. Blocher by his industry and close attention to business has made a name for himself as having an up-to-date store, one that would do credit to a town much larger than Gettysburg. Mr. Blocher will celebrate the quarter century anniversary by giving to each customer who makes a purchase this week a discount of ten per cent on every article sold.

Real Estate Sales.—George J. Martz, of Cashtown, bought the Harriet Galbraith property on York street. Consideration $2300.

Firemen's Food Sale.—The Gettysburg firemen cleared between $250 and $300 at the food sale held on Friday and Saturday evenings. Friday evening the firemen, headed by the Citizens band, paraded the streets, the company having the fire fighting apparatus in line.

Wedding Bells.—Arnold-Blocher: A very pretty wedding occurred in St. James church Thursday at high noon, when Miss S. Flo Blocher, of Seminary Ridge, became the bride of the Rev. Joseph Arnold, of Brooklyn, New York. A color scheme of gold and white carried out in gowns and decorations, made an unusually pretty scene. Preceding the wedding, Mrs. Joseph B. Baker played "Album Leaf" and Miss Ruth Clutz sang "Shall I Wed Thee?" Mrs. Baker played the Bridal Chorus from Lohengrin as the processional.

The ushers were J. Calvin Hartman, Maurice Bender and George E. Hartman, of Gettysburg, and Harry Kuhlman, of Ursinus. Miss Mary Himes and Miss Belle Bream, the bridesmaids, carried white daisies tied with yellow ribbons. They wore white with wreaths of daisies in their hair.

Read The Bible With Us Daily

I love the Lord, because he hath heard my voice and my supplications.

Because he that inclined his ear unto me, therefore will I call upon him as long as I live.

The sorrows of death compassed me, and the pains of hell gat hold upon me: I found trouble and sorrow.

Then I called upon the name of the Lord; O Lord, I beseech thee, deliver my soul.

Gracious is the Lord, and righteous; yea, our God is merciful.

The Lord preserveth the simple: I was brought low, and he helped me.

Return unto thy rest, O my soul: for the Lord hath dealt bountifully with thee.

For thou has delivered my soul from death, mine eyes from tears, and my feet from falling.

I will walk before the Lord in the land of the living.

I believed, therefore have I spoken: I was greatly afflicted:

I said in my haste, All men are liars.

What shall I render unto the Lord for all his benefits toward me?

I will take the cup of salvation, and call upon the name of the Lord.

I will pay my vows unto the Lord now in the presence of his people.

Precious in the sight of the Lord is the death of his saints.

O Lord, truly I am thy servant; I am thy servant, and the son of thine handmaid: thou has loosed my bonds.

I will offer to thee the sacrifice of thanksgiving, and will call upon the name of the Lord.

I will pay my vows unto the Lord now in the presence of all his people.

In the courts of the Lord's house, in the midst of thee, O Jerusalem. Praise ye the Lord.

Psalm 116.

Justine Hartley and Lucille Bender, the flower girls, carried baskets of daisies.

Miss Wanda Arnold, of Brooklyn, New York, the maid of honor, wore white embroidery over yellow silk, and carried yellow daisies. The bride attired in white chiffon over satin and carrying roses, entered on the arm of her brother, Ralph Blocher. Rev. Mr. Arnold was attended by Rev. Robert E. Peterman, of Hanover, as best man.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Joseph B. Baker, the double ring ceremony being used.

A wedding reception was held at the home of the bride on Seminary Ridge.

Rev. and Mrs. Arnold will spend ten days at Pine Beach, New Jersey. On July 4th, they will sail for Germany and Switzerland, going from there to Monrovia, Liberia, Africa, where they will take up their work in the Lutheran mission.

Markley—Meals—Miss Ethel M. Meals, of Carlisle, at 12 o'clock noon Thursday, became the bride of Robert M. Markley, a prominent young architect and draftsman, of Richmond, Virginia.

The bride is the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Meals, of Carlisle, former residents of Center Mills.

Catholic School Commencement.—The annual commencement exercises of St. Francis Xavier school took place Thursday evening in Xavier Hall, which was prettily decorated with the colors of the school—blue and gold. The music was furnished by the Citizens band.

The operetta "Little Red Riding Hood," was presented in five scenes. Marie Codori, as queen, appeared in the opening scene. The duet "Haste Away" by the mother, Onelda Snyder, and Red Riding Hood, Margaret Beck, was well rendered. Edward Codori took the part of the wolf.

In the fifth scene Red Riding Hood was restored to her mother by the Fairy Queen and her attendants in a beautiful tableau. There were two graduates—Miss Helen Margaret Stock and Miss Helen Virginia Myers. The valedictory was given by Miss Stock. Rev. Father T. X. Dougherty presented the diplomas.

Awards for excellence in business penmanship were presented to Mary Ruth Breighner, William J. Abell, Blanche B. Palmer, Eva B. Stock, Genevieve A. Power and Anna May Sionaker.

The address to the graduates was made by Rev. John M. Nichols, D. D., of Philadelphia.

War College Officers Here.—Forty officers of the Army war college at Washington, arrived in town Tuesday afternoon and spent until Wednesday afternoon in a technical study of the battlefield. They stopped at the Eagle hotel.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

SIR WALTER RALEIGH ON WRITING

I HAVE gained such enjoyment from the notes of an essay by Sir Walter Raleigh, the late English essayist and lecturer, that I want to devote this talk to extracts from that one chapter. Here they are.

"A word is a deed, and problems of expression and conduct can never be wholly separated."

"Writing, to be good, requires a lively intelligence and sympathy, a well-stored mind and a feeling heart. It must be sincere, lucid, and vivacious."

"Words acquire and lose associations." "A good player can play with anything. A good writer can get his effect in words known to every policeman."

"It is good, if you can, to speak and write English that Shakespeare and Milton would have understood. You must admit words that they did not know, but a good writer will prefer, where it is possible, to do his work with words that they did know."

"The real question to be considered first is, not how shall you write, but why should you write at all. The answer to this question is often very unsatisfactory and inadequate."

"Every man is eloquent on what he knows."

"It is by using a word that you learn it. Every one knows hundreds of words that he has never used. You must write or speak to learn to write or speak."

"A good writer is like a good draughtsman—use few, decisive lines. If you do not know anatomy, your drawing is woolly."

"The flowers and fruits of style grow on the tree of character."

French Authors Stage Track Meet In Paris

Paris (AP).—The sight of dignified authors and playwrights cavorting like collegians met visitors at the Bois de Boulogne where a recently formed club of French men of letters held its first meet.

Jean Fayard, winner of this year's Goncourt prize, was one of the contestants. He managed to clear four feet nine inches in the high jump, but fell four inches short of the jump of Andre Gonnet.

Gaston Rougeot, retiring president of the Society of Men of Letters, and Jose Germain, distinguished novelist, disappointed admirers by failing to appear for the 100 yard dash. Starter for the event was Tristan Bernard, well known playwright and humorist.

Other events included the shotput, a basketball game, and a tennis match in which two writers defeated a pair of actors.

Just Folks

EDGAR A. GUEST

FRIDAY NIGHT

On Sunday night at home we stay,
For school begins the following day.

On Monday night it is the rule
I must prepare myself for school.
They send me off to bed at eight,
For children mustn't stay up late.

On Tuesday all they say is "No!"
When out with them I beg to go.
In school to do their very best
All little girls must get their rest.
And then when Wednesday evening comes
I sit at home and twirl my thumbs.

I can't go out on Thursday night,
For daddy says it isn't right.
If there's a show I want to see
On Thursday, it can never be.
But mother tells me that we might
All go to see it Friday night.

So all week long I work on sums
And wait till Friday evening comes.
Then after supper off we go
To see a moving picture show,
And 'round about us everywhere
I see a lot of children there.

Bucharest (AP).—Rumania has joined the list of countries forbidding free buying and selling of foreign exchange. All foreign currency, checks and bank credits must be converted into lei and export of currency is forbidden.

STOCK TAXABLE BY STATE LAW

Stamp Tax Required On Transfer Of Stock Shares Within State.

The department of revenue is calling the attention of Pennsylvania corporations and other corporations having their stock transfer offices in Pennsylvania to the fact that this state has a stamp tax on the transfer of shares of stock of Pennsylvania corporations or foreign corporations having their transfer offices in Pennsylvania. This tax is at the rate of two cents per $100 where there is par value of the stock and in cases where the stock is of no par value, the tax is at the rate of two cents a share.

The tax does not apply to original shares but applies to any transfer whether evidenced by the actual assignment of the certificate or a memorandum or bill of sale or any other paper evidencing the transfer of a certificate from one holder to another.

Neglect Cited
A check made by the department of revenue during the last year reveals the fact that many corporations have neglected to see that the necessary stamps have been affixed.

The department is working in conjunction with the federal government in the enforcement of this tax. Commissioner M. Clyde Sheaffer of the bureau of corporation taxes said today that he hopes that all corporations subject to the tax will check their records and see that the tax due on all transfers has been paid and evidenced by the necessary stamps being affixed and concealed. The department would much prefer to have their field investigators report that every transaction subject to this tax has been paid rather than to make reports that the tax is owing which necessitates the submission of affidavits where no such stamps have been affixed. The stamps may be obtained at the various banks throughout the state which sell them.

Coffee Cargo Helps Pay Olympic Expenses

Rio De Janeiro (AP).—Coffee will help take Brazil's team of nearly fifty to the Olympic games in Los Angeles.

The Itaque of the Brazilian merchant marine, which sails June 20 for Los Angeles with the Brazilian athletes, will carry 50,000 sacks of coffee.

When the Brazilian athletic confederation chartered the steamer it asked the cooperation of the national coffee council in getting a cargo that would defray most of the expenses of the voyage.

The coffee council, in turn, asked exporters to supply the necessary cargo.

Fat Man Reduces 53 Pounds—Oh Boy

Don't be stubborn, you big fat men—throw off your fat before your fat throws you into the discard. Do as Mr. S. A. Lanier, of Sawtelle, Calif., did—read his letter:

"I have used two reducing belts to no benefit but since using Kruschen Salts each morning in my coffee I have taken off 7 lbs. in a week and eat most anything I like. I weighed 243 lbs., 6 months ago and now I weigh 190 lbs."

Take one half teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water every morning—cut down on fatty meats, potatoes and sweets—now you know the safe way to lose unsightly fat.

For a trifling sum you can get a jar of Kruschen Salts that lasts 4 weeks at People's Drug Store or any drugstore in the world—but be sure and get Kruschen—your health comes first.

Beating Handed Schmeling Gives Challenger Odds

New York (AP)—Max Schmeling stepped out of the ring at the Yankee stadium two years ago, the new heavyweight champion—with a face that looked as though someone had been battering it with soft rubber hose.

Down the opposite steps stalked Jack Sharkey, without a mark on him, but officially beaten by a low left hook he thudded into the German's groin in the fourth round.

The foul ended as one-sided a four rounds as ever opened a heavy-weight title contest. Grim and alert, the Boston sailor jabbed Schmeling's face with lefts, hooked his head, crossed his right. He swept the German before him, landing at will, taking but one solid right hand to the head in the four rounds.

But Schmeling won on a foul and Tuesday night, June 21, in the new Madison Square bowl on Long Island, he again meets the Sharkey who despises him, believes that he can smash that face again. Sharkey is two years older, shading 30, and five pounds heavier, adding weight to his wallop. Apparently he is as fast and clever as he ever was.

Schmeling, for two years, has been perfecting a defense against the wallops that swelled his nose and eyes out of shape. He is deadly calm, a steady, punishing puncher. Young Stribling could not hit him solidly. He believes Sharkey never will again.

But the mental edge is all with the challenger. Schmeling remembers punishment. Sharkey still rages at the injustice of losing a fight to a man who showed nothing but ability to stand up under a beating. In that mental state he is a tremendous fighter. One or the other will need heavy applications of arnica Wednesday morning.

Sharkey is two years older, shading 30, and five pounds heavier, adding weight to his wallop. Apparently he is as fast and clever as he ever was.

Schmeling, for two years, has been perfecting a defense against the wallops that swelled his nose

and eyes out of shape. He is deadly calm, a steady, punishing puncher. Young Stribling could not hit him solidly. He believes Sharkey never will again.

But the mental edge is all with the challenger. Schmeling remembers punishment. Sharkey still rages at the injustice of losing a fight to a man who showed nothing but ability to stand up under a beating. In that mental state he

GERMANS UNITE
IN DENOUNCING
MORE "TRIBUTE"

Central Europe Sees New Era
After Lausanne Conference.

By Louis P. Lochner
Berlin (AP).—All Germany expects Lausanne to give a first class burial to reparations.
Brueining and his associates are certain to be disavowed if they sign any paper that will commit Germany, now or in the future, to additional war payments, or to use a term universally employed here, to further "tribute."
Any government succeeding Brueining would be dominated by Hitler's national socialists and they have told the masses and they not only oppose further "tribute," but that they will declare the treaty of Versailles null and void.
The cat was let out of the bag on January 9 when, by an indiscretion, the gist of Brueining's talk with Sir Horace Rumbold, British ambassador in Berlin, became known.

"The German government cannot now and will not in future pay reparations," the chancellor was reported to have said. The government press bureau hastened to explain that the chancellor had merely pointed out that Germany cannot pay and that, if the world is to recover economically, further reparations should not be demanded.
Freeze British Plan
Whatever Brueining may have said, the world knew that Germany would balk at further reparations. From Britain, soon thereafter, came feelers suggesting that Germany ought to agree to some mild, easily bearable sum, just to ease of the situation. They met with an icy silence.
By April 23 the German finance minister, Dr. Hermann Dietrich, felt he could calmly state in a public speech at Altona:
"After July 1 Germany will no longer pay. If I, as finance minister, can announce this without provoking international complications, this may be taken as proof that the position has become pretty evident also to other countries."
Whether the creditors like it or not, the bald fact remains that all Germany believes her future depends upon shaking off "tribute." No German statesman can afford to compromise.
Even a quid-pro-quo, such as colonial mandates, or equality in armaments, or the acceptance of German railway bonds in lieu of reparations, can not, as public feeling in Germany now runs, sugar-coat a reparations pill.
Hence Brueining and his associates at Lausanne will make a last effort to convince creditor countries that only if reparations are "spurious veniens," ("sunk without trace") can the world recover. If that effort fails, the German chancellor will, under the pressure of public opinion, be forced to bow himself out of the conference and return home.
Germany's Last Trump
Then what? Germany holds one more trump card. Hitherto she has refrained from declaring a moratorium on her private debts.
The first acts of the German cabinet, on the return from a resultless Lausanne, probably would be declaration of a general moratorium, decree of the most stringent measures ever adopted by any government for preventing money from leaving Germany, and embarkation upon an experiment in autarchy involving much the same sort of sacrifice as was required of civilians during the latter part of the World war.

POSTOFFICE FOR 200
Kingsiree, S. C. (AP)—Kingstree this year is celebrating its bicentennial, and the occasion is to be featured by dedication of a new post-office.
Ed Tryban, of Duquoin, Illinois, shortstop and captain of the 1931 University of Illinois baseball team, will share the captaincy this spring with George Mills pitcher.

To Boy In Utrecht
Oven in Utrecht, Holland, is a Dutch boy, who probably is the envy of his neighborhood. His hobby is collecting automobile license plates. Recently he found his collection was shy a plate from the United States. So he wrote the Pennsylvania department of revenue for a sample plate. His request was granted. Now Pennsylvania has taken her place in his international collection.
He has promised to reciprocate by sending a Dutch registration plate to the department. Incidentally, he writes that every car owner in Holland has the privilege of making his own registration plates. Each year the Netherlands government specifies the color and size of the plates for that year. Car owners either may buy their plates from a plate manufacturer or make their own by obtaining a piece of steel of the required size and painting in the official colors. The government also designates the number.

New York—It is estimated that There are about 18,000 cabs in New York and business isn't pros-some of the meter readings we've wept over, you and I may have the idea that we've taken care of a cou-

Those platinum blondes we see

Harpo's Horrible Harp
Harpo Marx's first harp was dug much of a wreck.

The Marx brothers didn't mind that, because their act was sup-

Harpo didn't know anything about the technique of harp playing, so they figured there wasn't much use

SUPER-POWERED
FOR LOWER OPERATING COST with 2 cylinders instead of 1

It's the extra cylinders that make modern motor cars so much smoother, quieter and more economical to operate than the old-fashioned one-cylinder "gas eater." And it's the extra cylinders that enable the Super-Powered Frigidaire to set new standards of economy and dependable performance!
Before you buy any refrigerator... ask how many cylinders it has. Insist upon an answer!
And remember, low-powered, one-cylinder refrigerators must keep going—and consuming electric current—almost constantly.
And because Frigidaire "hits" on two cylinders instead of one it has to run only a small part of the time to provide proper refrigeration—to freeze more ice cubes and freeze them faster! There's a saving that shows on your electric bill every month!
Add to this the food dollars Frigidaire saves because it is Super-Powered to guarantee dependable food preservation on the hottest days—in the most over-heated kitchen. And plus this with Frigidaire's economical, trouble-free long life—assured because its balanced mechanism runs smoother, quieter, with less wear and tear!

frigeration and Frigidaire's lower operating

ANTI-PROHIBITION LEADERS

Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler (left), president of Columbia university, and Senator Hiram Bingham of Connecticut, foes of the national dry laws, were leaders in the fight to get a repeal plank in the party platform at the republican national convention in Chicago.
giving him a costly new instrument to pick to pieces.
Harpo plucked along at the decrepit instrument until the brothers were in a train crash down in Mississippi. The jolt knocked all the strings loose and cracked the body.
Railroad officials, knowing the original cost of harps, offered $250 damages. Harpo was awe-struck, but took the money. He kept the old harp, too, possibly because no one would haul it away.
When he returned to Chicago, he took the $250 to a music store and offered to trade in the crumpled instrument to boot—if the store would have it. To his further amazement, he was allowed $350 on the $40 piece of junk.
Harpo thought he was pretty slick.
But he changed his mind when, a few days later, he learned that the music shop had turned the ancient harp over to an antique dealer for $750!
We only hope the antique dealer sold the harp before 1930. He couldn't have got $40 for it, then.
Here And There
Perhaps the most imaginative fellow in town is that night club boss who began making plans for a "real old-fashioned New Year's eve" at his place right after Mr. Rockefeller's pronouncement.
Police Commissioner Mulrooney is a first nighter out of fondness for shows—not in a censorial capacity.
Arthur Hopkins, the producer,
once was a reporter in Cleveland.
When Mr. Hopkins has a hit show on his hands, he is high-strung and fidgety. But when one of his productions promises to go ka-flop, he becomes more or less resigned and his temper is better. Thus he reverses the usual order of producer behavior.
Mayor Joseph G. Lightner, of Odessa, Missouri, came to town to attend the annual banquet and show of the Society of American Magicians. He was a magician himself in his younger days, and his skill came in handy when he was the first man to own an automobile in Odessa. A fellow had to know some magic to keep one of those old time busses running.
Price reductions in the finer shops haven't helped the fashion copyists' trade very much. Neither, apparently, have they caused any great decrease in demand for duplications of the best Paris fashions—pocketbooks shrinking more or less in proportion.
